JACKSON'S

"BILLY THE KID."

In his new play, "Billy, the Kid,"
y Joseph Santley and Walter Woods,
Frank Dickson gives an exhibtion of horsemanship not often seen, even on the stage. The action of the play called for his exit at the end of the third act on horseback, but he makes his entrance on the animal as well. The horse he rides has a history. Every wild west show has a number of untrained western horses which are known as bucking bronchos. This horse was one of them and one of the mand one of the man the most vicious in the equipment. The show was in New York this summer and as no one could do anything with the hrose, the owners were glad to part with it for a trifle of its value. It fell into the hands of the actor, and many are the weary hours he spent, treating the horse with the ut-most kindness, before he could even mount its back. Now the horse ap-pears to, recognize the mastery of the man. Yet with Dickson he is as gentle as a kitten and invariably receives his sugar each time he is ridden.
"Billy, the Kid" will be presented at Jackson's Theatre, the first three days

STRATFORD

Postponed Fair Tonight-Fishing Excellent-What Stratford Grows.

After all the preparations which have been in progress for a month past, and the fond anticipation raised, past, and the fond anticipation raised, it was both damp and disappointing to have such a downpour on Stratford avenue, at the corner of Beardsley's lane, that the Masonic garden fete had to be postponed. A long and high piece of sail cloth had been stretched around the lot to ensure comfort and privacy, and the good Rebekah's had baked a lot of delicious cakes for the event. Two of the musical numbers which the local string orcal numbers which the local string orcal numbers which the local string orchestra proposed to play last night were called, "Rainbow" and "Looks Like a Big Night Tonight." There would have been a sure enough rainbow if the sun had come out, and it was certainly a big night for ducks.
